A ST. LOUIS TRAGEDY. Terrible Revenge by a Discarded

Suitor.
Sr. Louis, Dec. 7.—[By the Associated Press. A terrible tragedy occurred this morning at the house of John Anson, 3134 Hickory street. Casper Clispy, a would-be suitor of Anson's daughter Mary, aged 25, and who had been forbidden the house, entered while the family was at break-fast, and without a word of warning drew two revolvers and commenced firing. The first shot struck Mr. Anson and inflicted a fatal wound. Another bullet struck Mary on the head, but glanced around under the scalp, and she will recover. scalp, and she will recover. Her younger scaip, and she will recover. It younger sister, Agnes, received a ball above the left temple, which penetrated the brain, and she cannot live through the night. Clispy then dropped one of his pistols, and running up to the second floor of the house, fired three bullets into his head and soon died.

soon died.

Clispy was a machinist, and worked in the Missouri Pacific shops with Anson. Mary did not care for him, but he persistently thrust his attentions on her. It is add Anson learned that Clispy was addicted to the use of opium and forbade him the house. Mary had also refused to see him again. On learning this it is said he threatened to have blood, but little attention was paid to his threats. Anson died at the hospital this afternoon.

By Telegraph to The Times.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—[By the Associated Press.] The National Line Steamship Company's dock, at pier 39, North River, took fire this afternoon and burned nearly to the water's edge. At least four blackened dead bodies have been taken from the ruins. Many more people were die. It was the most disastrous fire on triver front in some time. For two bou the fire resisted the efforts of the firemen.
The spread of the fire before it was discovered find the confidence of the dock laborers that they could extinguish it without the aid of outside apparatus gave the flames a tremendous headway. Before the men were really aware of their danger the westerly oud of the dock was a burning mass, and the dock laborers had to flee for their lives. It was then that most of them were injured. Those who did not escape at that time were overpowered by the smoke and fell seuseless and dying in their tracks.

After further arrument Foster told the jury they must either find Beggs worthy of death or acquit him entirely.

Beggs worthy of death or acquithim entirely.

Forrest then began the closing argument on behalf of the defense. He began by contrasting the methods used by the orators for the prosecution and those for the defense in treating of circumstantial evidence. The prosecution treated it as a mass, but the defense analyzed each circumstance, and this was the right method. He occupied the remainder of the session with reading from legal works and making an exhaustive statement of the application of circumstantial evidence.

THROWN INTO THE CELE-BRATED GARRETT CASE,

Mrs. Burns, formerly Nettle Keys, Tells How Garrett Prepared False Testimony for Her, which She Refused to Give-Josie Corbett Corroborated.

The crowning stroke of the prosecuon in the trial of Capt. F. M. Garrett, charged with incest, was given yesterday, and knocked the few last props from under the tottering defense of the shameless old man. It was the testimony given during the afternoon session by Mrs. Nettie Burns, formerly Miss Nettie Keys.

When the trial was resumed at 10 o'clock every seat in the courtroom was occupied, and admission was re-fused to those who could not secure sitting room. The first witness for the day was Capt. L. D. Graves of San Bernardino, James Edgcomb. There was no cross-examination.

F.E. Olds, a painter, testified that he lived in a house at the corner of Fourth and Main streets at the time Garrett and his daughter lived there. He occupied an adjoining room. He was introduced to her by Garrett as his daughter. They occupied one room, and the witness did not know how many beds were in the room. There was no cross-examination.

When court convened in the afternoon the same curious crowd was in attendance. The defendant and his counsel, W. T. Williams and Horace Bell, were sitting by their table, without in the least anticipating the trems.

paler and looked haggard and worn all at once.

The door opened and a trim-looking woman, neatly dressed, and with quite a bright face, entered. She went directly to the witness stand and was sworn. She gave her name as Mrs. Nettie Burns of Ventura. Her maiden name was Miss Nettie Keys, and she figured in the preliminary examination of the defendant before Justice Lockwood. She was summoned as a witness by Garrett at that examination, but was never called and never gave any testimony. Sit:: I fear that my father is hopelessly insane. I have had him cared for by a family named Benton, who live near Azusa, in Los Augeles county, for about two years; in Los Augeles county, for about two years; but now my money is all gone, and there is no one who has money to take care of him, ence I will have to turn him over to the State to be cared for. I do this because Mrs. Benton writes me that they cannot control him. He runs all over the country, day or night, and picks up anything he likes (other's property) and brings it home with him. His case is very bad indeed. I cannot write you fully, but you can find out all about him by cailing upon Mr. and Mrs. Benton, who live about three and one-half miles south, a little west, of Azusa. The people near where he lives are continually complaining of his coming to their houses, and many women are afraid of him. Bentons do not want to keep him any longer. I hope you will attend to him mediately. I would like to come up and see to him myself, but I have not the money necessary to pay my expenses. Very respectfully, W. R. Young,

The meeting was mainly devoted to formal work, after which the matter of the proposed sewers was discussed. A committee consisting of the president, H. C. Witmer, Dr. Alter, N. S. Averill and M. H. Merriman was appointed to consult with the board of engineers who are now making the plans of the new sewers.

The district included by the Crown Hills extends from Temple street on the north to Ward street on the south, and from Bunker Hill avenue on the east to the west city limits. About 50 residents of that district have already signified their desire to join the Board of Trade, which will surely result in good work being accomplished.

The next meeting will be held at the same place, on Friday evening, December 13th, at 7:30.

One of the interesting events of the ast week was the general Christian onference, held in Boston, under the auspices of the American Evangelical Alliance of the United States. Among the important questions considered by Among these needs, it was asserted, are a greater zeal for the public welfare—a zeal which should find embodiment in better municipal laws. There should also be a revival of personal endeavor for the good of others. The philanthropy of today, instead of lending itself to personal effort, is too apt, when appealed to, to say, "Here is my check; Lord, send some one else." That philanthropy which comes into personal contact with those who are to be helped and lifted up is the most effectual. There is contagion in personal contact.

The condition of the poor mountain whites of the South, as set forth at this conference, is most deplorable. There is work for the schoolmaster the patriot and the minister among them. Frank Jenkins of Alabam said of their condition: "Family feuds, illicit distilling and disregard of the narriage ties have woefully corrupted them. The ministers are illiterate, often immoral and drunkards. But no people ever responded more readily to missionary effort."

This mental and moral darkness is a continued menace to southern advancement and pelitical integrity. It is to the interest of the whole people of the United States to look to it that such a ondition of affairs is remedied. Enlightenment and moral purification are the especial needs of those poor and ignorant whites who are made the tools slave under the old régime was not as bad as is that of these sovereign citizens of free America today. There must be marvelous strength in the American Republic to enable it-with all these disturbing elements, these dead weights to advancement, these hindrances to the proper administration of law and the carrying out of the will of the majority, and, ad-ding to all this, the large alien element of ignorance, vice, demagoguery and anarchistic sentiment - to yet hold firmly together, in spite of all these internal dangers, a nation respected by the whole world, stronger and more powerful than all the might of thrones. But we cannot deal lightly with these evils. They are corrupting and weakening in their influence. Upon the education and enlightenment of the masses depends the safety and the perpetuity of the Republic. It is man who is intelligent enough to appreciate the blessings of liberty who is willing to lift his arm in its defense. Education is mightier than the sword in making freemen. The schoolmaster no less

Its interior countries will, sooner or later, have large commercial relations with the outside world, and then will commence its steady progress. Railroads will be built inland, and with general traffic will untimately come lightenment and progress. Africa has some good native timber for State-building—some noble tribes of people whose natural characteristics are maniness, courage and superb physical endowments. Add to these intellectual enlightenment, and there will be a race of people for whom future civilization will not need to blush.

There is a great work for the nations to accomplish in Africa, and for this work modern explorations are rapidly paving the way.

Referring to a present soon as he heard of their success. He threatening danger, the report says:

Upon credible information, we believe that at points upon King's, Fresno and the Merced rivers, above where any waters are withdrawn for irrigation or mining purposes, that, in so-called "dry years," there is already a marked diminution in the volume of their waters over past "dry years," and prior to the wanton deforestation of the brush and timber-covered slopes of their watersheds.

From personal observation we know this the brush and timber-covered slopes of their watersheds.

From personal observation we know this to be true of the Feather River, and believe that the same causes that threaten the mining, agricultural, and horticultural interests of this State are insidiously, but unerringly, at work to imperil and undernine the inland river commerce of our navigable streams, the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers. Unfortunately, the ownership of much of these timbered lands has passed into private or corporate hands; and we say unfortunately advisedly, as it seems impossible to impose any forcible restraints that shall altogether do away with wanton and wasteful destruction of timber by fire and the axe, or the pasturing out of their forest reproductive character by persons unmindful of the future and heedful only of onsiderations of immediate gain to them of cigars in Austria

There are still left brush and timbercovered watersheds of the Sierra Nevadas, comprising millions of acres of surveyed and unsurveyed lands, in the hands of the United States Government. Notwithstanding orders of the General Land Office, issued as far notices warning against the setting out of fires, such notices have not ords be found of arrests or prosecu-tions within this State by Federal people engaged here. been posted in the State, nor can recofficials for such offenses. Rigorous measures have been carried out to bring to justice officials for such offenses. been carried out to bring to justice those who have cut and stolen timber from these lands, yet the value of such timber is insignificant compared with the standing timber and young forest that is annually swept away by fire and sheep. In addition to the danger from fire to adjacent property, the destruction of these forests threatens us with the further danger from floods. us with the further danger from floods, which may be expected to result from their indiscriminate removal.

The board recommends, in view of these facts, the temporary repeal of the timber entry law in California, and the absolute withdrawal from sale worse than Egyptian night of of all Federal timber lands in the State, until future surveys have determined the areas and boundaries of such tracts as are contained within the natural watersheds of our streams and waterways; also that the timber on such lands, when fit to harvest, should be sold, not the land. It is further recommended that the custody of our timber lands should be assigned of designing politicians and political slave-masters. Attached to the memorial are two large and spirited engravings, one showing Methods of Cutting 'Improvident Timber," and the other "Ravages of Forest Fires."

The importance of conserving and promoting the forest wealth of a country has long been fully recognized by European governments. It is time that it should receive more attention in this country. The present memorial, which is creditable to our For estry Board, may do something to assist in arousing such attention. The members of the board are Walter S. Moore, chairman; John D. to Rise.
PASADENA, Dec. 4.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] That there is an increase in the interest in mining busiess is very evident. The rich specinens brought in recently from mines n this vicinity, and now on exhibition in Los Angeles, are likely to cause persons to lose sight of the real value of mining property, and to invest their money in worthless stock.

It should be remembered that rich specimens are found in every vein carrying gold and silver, but a few pounds, or even a few hundred pounds, do not constitute a mine, and would-be investors should investigate most thoroughly the real merits of mining property before purchasing stock.

At a time when there is an unusual interest in mines, caused by the rise in price of stock, rich strikes, the adin price of stock, rich strikes, the adin price of stock, rich strikes, the advance of the price of silver or a base metal, excellent opportunities are aftorded to foist wildcats and worthless, so-called "securities" on the public.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 7.—[By the Asso clated Press. The remains of Jefferson Davis are lying in State in the Council chamber at the City Hall. The coffin rests chamber at the City Hall. The coffin rests upon a catafaique devoid of much ornamentation. The casket has a silver plate, upon which is the simple inscription, "Jefferson Davis—At Rest," with the date of death. Badges of Confederate associations, the flag the Washington Artillery carried through the war, a bunch of wheat, and a pair of crossed Spanish daggers, fastened together with a purple ribbon, are the only other ornaments.

The room is lit up by clusters of electric lights, their brilliancy being dimmed by the sable drapery. Soldiers in uniform stand quard. Stacks of arms and cannon fill the guard. Stacks of arms and cannon fill the corners of the chamber, and all around the walls are rowe of plants and shrubbery. Since early morning people have been pouring in to take a last look at the dead. broke the world's record in her last transpacific passage, brought with her a cargo of raw silk and tea. The Atlantic and Pacific Railroad Company has a contract to deliver the cargo to different points in the East. The quick passage of the steamer has excited officials of the company, and they will endeavor to break the railroad record east. This evening at 6 o'clock a special train left with 85 tons of raw silk and 400 tons of tea, the object being to run the special to Barstow, and catch the fast overland from Los Angeles. It is thought that the Canadian Pacific time will be broken by S6 hours. If it can be demonstrated that tea can be delivered in Chicago and New York in advance of the Canadian Pacific's time, it is thought that shipments will be resumed from San Francisco, and thus bring in an extensive trade, which was being diverted to Vancouver.

A Long List of Congressmen Whose Notes He Forged-His Vic-tims Will Try to Extradite Him.

Washington, Dec. 7.—[By the Associated Press.] Leedom has been gathering additional facts bearing on the defalcation of Cashier Slicott. There has been a good deal of speculation as to why Slicott took up a number of notes at the National Metropolitan Bank last week just before he disappeared. Leedom has secured an explanation, which is to the effect that the cashier forged the names of members of the House and others to 36 notes, aggregating $14,500. It was these notes which he took up November 27th. Leedom's theory is that Silcott has gone to Canada. It is believed, however, that he can be extradited. It was reported this morning that he had been seen in New York, en route for Buffalo, and that he had been arrested in Albany. The report lacks confirmation.

The Congressional committee is busy with the investigation, Members of the House claim that the Government will have to make the sums lost good to them.

Representative Thompson of Ohio was before the committee this afternoon in connection with the inquiry into the character of the notes taken up by Slicott, and was confronted with the record of a note purporting to be his for the amount of a month's salary cashed in September. Thompson declared that he was not in Washington in September. He denied that he ever made such a note.

Representatives Stone of Missouri, Mansuri, Caruth, Crisp, Herbert and four or five others testified to the same effect as to notes made out, in their names, Caruth stating that he was in Europe when the note process of the new Congress the hour of reckoning had come, and being work deeper in the pit. With the opening of the new Congress the hour of reckoning had come, and being unable to settle up, he decided to make a big haul. Before going with the money he got from the Treasury, it is now understood he consulted his lawyer, who advised him to take up the notes, so as to destroy the evidence of forgeries, as that orims is covered by the extradition treaty with Great Britain.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

The Doctors Differ on the Bug Question!"
Los Angeles, Dec. 4.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] In an article headed as above in yesterday's TIMES our some statements and assertions by others (however, honestly entertained) that I deem erroneous and calculated to work serious injury to the great majority of citrus fruit-growers, more especially to those whose orchards have not yet become infected by the red scale, but are in imminent danger of becoming so on account of the rapid spread of the pest in spite of all the so-called parasites at present known. It is quite true that there is a little steel-gray, winged insect that perforates the armor of the red scale, and thus destroys some, and the twice-stabbed ladybug preys upon the scale to some extent; but if they ever succeed in ridding our orchards of the pest it will require too great a length of time, and bankruptcy and ruin will come to all horticulturists not blessed with a good bank account who wait, and take no other measures of fighting the pest. If Mr. Cogsweil of Sierra Madre Villa is so sure that the little winged parasite has done the good work for him, why has he continued to drench his trees with cold water under heavy pressure, inasmuch as that would also destroy many of the parasites inevitably? Why not let them perform the good work alone if he was satisfied of their capacity for so doing. At Mr. Chapman's ranch, where the trees have been infected for many years with red scale, many of them are showing signs of renewed vigor and comparative freedom from the pest, but others not hitherto affected are becoming so.

We were shown a tree where the alleged parasite was said to be most plentiful, and had been all summer; but, although the combined commissions of Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties, with several other gentlemen, searched patiently for nearly an hour, they succeeded in finding only a few, and only one or two perforated scales. There were live scales in abundance, and the only conclusion I can arrive at is, that where the red scale has disappeared it has been caused by some mysterious disease or epidemic, through long occupation and overcrowding—just as epidemics will carry off the human occupants of overcrowded and fithy cities. I believe if there is any moral in Mr. Cogswell's experience, it is to spray with something, even cold water, under such a pressure as he possesses and applied when the young scale insect first emerges, would effectually destroy nearly the whole brood.

In this connection permit me to say that no fears need be entercained of the loss of the vedolia, for, in addition to the steps taken to preserve them in tents, they have reapp

Superintendent of the Government Botanical Gardens, in the island of Mauritius, in a letter to Prof. Coquillette, stated that the red scale pest had disappeared there, which result he attributed to "heavy rains or parasites," but he was not aware of the presence of any parasite; hence it might be inferred the drenching rains were responsible.

Last evening about 6:30 o'clock Dr. Stevens was arrested by Humane Officer Wright on a charge of cruelty to children and brought to the police station where he deposited $25 cash bail for his appearance when wanted, and was released. The complaint was sworn out before Judge Owens by S W. Lanning, and is the result of the W. Lanning, and is the result of the "skin-grafting" operation, an account of which has already then published in The Times. Lanning's little son answered an advertisement in the papers, signed by Dr. Stevens, for boys to call at an address on Ocean avenue, where they would be given employment, the pay being 81 per hour. When young Lanning called, he found that the boys were wanted to furnish "skin-grafts" for a man who had been burned, and on the representation that the operation would not hurt him, allowed Dr. Stevens to take ten grafts from his arm, for which he was paid 5 cents per graft, or 50 cents in all. Conductor Dowling, who was in charge of the train which struck the body, testified as to the finding of the body, and described the position in which it was lying at the time.

He was followed by Frank Snee, one of the men who was arrested at the time for complicity in the crime, who testified that he did not see the fight between Glass and the Mexicans, as he was in the saloon when it occurred. He meant by this the last fight.

Dr. D. Granville MacGowan, who made the post mortem, then described in detail the nature of the wounds which had caused death, and, at the conclusion of his direct elamination, a recess was taken until 2 o'clock.

When court reconvened, the Doctor was cross-examined at great length by Matrimonial Bureau.

pated at the the outset. Today more than 700 copies are circulated in Pasadena—a number at least treble that of the circulation of any other Los Angeles paper in the suburban city. Saber: although Neal Dow claims to the contrary. Liquor is continually being yo se; tu seis; el sabe; sabeamas; sabeis; saben. . . See?

The opinions of Bishop Neeley, the eminent divine of the prohibition State of Maine—now visiting Pasadena—are of interest on aimost any subject, but particularly so on prohibition, as a means of preventing the sale and use a means of preventing the sale and use of intoxicants. What Bishop Neeley says accords with the sentiment, we think, of a large majority of Pasadenians; that prohibition does not accomplish in Maine or Pasadena what Whatever may be said, the fact remains that a large and eminently respectable body of citizens in Pasadena believe that prohibitive measures in this city have failed, and failed signally. The present City Council was elected on a rigid Prohibition ticket at a time when a Puritanical wave swept over our city. They have had full power, and as a result have driven the saloon from Pasadena, to the satisfac-WHATEVER may be said, the fact realoon from Pasadena, to the satisfaccity at heart. To attain this nl, and point to our empty jail d idle court officials as proof. ot this does not satisfy a large number of persons who know what is going on. They know that there are, and always have been, a number of places here where intoxicants were sold. They know that just as much liquor and wine circulates today as did a year or more ago, and they are confident that it always will. They also believe that Pasadena is posing as a health resort, and that as such her hotels should have the privilege of offering to guests or purchasers what liquid refreshment they desire. They also object to the methods of the Prohibitionists, who are willing to claim that Pasadena is a prohibition town, when every practical, conservative man knows that it is not. There has Attorney Polley. never been a time during the present prohibitive administration but that of November was read and filed. there were from one were sold. Is where Is this prohibition? In other words, the attempt, honorable, perhaps, in its motive, to prevent the sale of intoxicants in Pasadena, is a failure: (1) Because the ordinance cannot be enforced; (2) because a large number of persons do not desire to have the sale entirely restricted. This, without making too fine a point, is the position, and from can surmise what will be the attitude of the people to the Council in the coming election. They, or a large number, will demand an amendment of article 45, so that hotels of the first class can serve wine or liquor to their guests, either at the table, or in a wineroom prepared for the purpose. For this privilege the hotel should pay a round sum, or license. The result of this consummation will be that where places where intoxicants are rewithout paying a revenue, then there will probably be but two, from which the city should receive a good income. It is simply a question of license. Liquors are being sold today without a revenue; then they will be sold with one. The quesn whether this will open the way low saloons is one with which the uncil and City Attorney will have do. We venture to say that the to do. We venture to say that the sentiment of the best people is against anything approaching the disgraceful saloon that once existed here collecting tramps and criminals; but that hotels of the first class, who can control their custom, should have more privileges if they care to pay for them, bids fair to become a local issue.

BISHOP NEELEY TALKS. VIEWS OF AN EMINENT MAINE DIVINE ON PROBIBITION.

BY MAIL, $9 A YEAR.

Measure Not Practical Temper ance from a Scriptural Standpoint-One Way to Remedy the Evil of Drunkenness.

Bishop Neeley of Maine, who is wintering in Pasadena, was seen yes-terday afternoon by a Times representative for the purpose of learning his views on the prohibition question. The eminence of the speaker, and the fact of his residence in a State where prohibition has long been in operation, make what he says below of much more than ordinary interest. While Bishop Neeley ventures no assertion paper, in describing how simple it was Bishop Neeley ventures no assertion to treat abstruse matters fully, said in to treat abstruse matters fully, said in lieu of an example that in writing up political economy he merely looked up "politics" in the encyclopædia, then "economy," and combined the two. The editor who can do this so that the reading public will not find it out is a genius.

The Pasadena Edition of The Times, which commenced publication October 20th, has been even more successful than the publishers anticipated at the the outset. Today more than 700 copies are circulated in Pasalitic of the liquor laws, I think there has been little or no diminution in the annual indulgence of any passion. Forty years ago, when liquor was displayed in almost every house for the free use of members of the family and guests, there were fewer drunkards than now. There is always and everywhere a supply to always and everywhere a supply to meet the demand, and I am inclined to believe that a man will drink more the better. the better."

When questioned on the matter of high license the Bishop said that his personal observation of its practical workings had been too limited to allow the state of the state of the law. If a man has to pay $500 or $1000 a year for the privilege of selling liquor, he is not likely to violate any statutes relating to the sale of the same."

With reference to the probable effect of Pasadena's present cold-water laws upon the town's progress, Bishop Neeley refused to express an opinion.
His short residence here, he said, did not warrant his doing so, and his parting suggestion was that the newspaper man ought to know far more relating to that part of the subject in question than he did.

The shells used for the poultry of San José and the surrouuding valley are gathered by boatmen at the oyster beds about 12 miles from the port of Alviso. At Alviso they are put in sacks holding about 80 pounds each, and sold to merchants wholesale, or by the sack to any one in need of them. These shells are small and very tender, requiring no grinding or crushing to prepare them for the poultry. They cost retail 35 cents a sack, and are being used more extensively each year.

THE 8TH OF DECEMBE ecclesiastical

December 8th is consec commemoration of the conception of the Virgin Mary. This is one of the festivals of the Roman Catholic Church, in connection with which a long controversy prevailed. It is well known that the doctrine of the immaculate conception of the Virgin, or her conception without the taint of original sin, was, till recently, a theological dogma on which the Church of Rome had pronounced no positive decision. Though accepted by the ma-jerity of doctors, and strenuously maintained by many theological writers, it was, nevertheless, denied by some, more especially by the Domi nicans, and was pronounced by several popes to be an article of faith which was neither to be absolutely en-several popes to be an article of faith which was neither to be absolutely enforced or condemned—a point in short, on which the members of the church were free to use their private judgment. But a few years ago, the question, which for centuries had been allowed to remain an open subject for discussion, was determined in the affirmative by a deliverance of Pope Plus IX. on December 8, 1854. The doctrine of the immaculate conception of the Virgin forms, accordingly, now, an essential article in the Roman Catholic system of belief.

December 8, 1590, at sunset, James Welsh of the ship Richard of Arundel, sailing off the coast of Guines, observed a great BLACK SPOT ON THE SUN, and found the same appearance visible next morning. Similar phenomena had been observed on several previous occasions. They did not, however, become a subject for scientific remark till about 1611. From the fact of these spots always remaining in the same relative position and continuing visible during equal times, they are considered to be component parts of the sun's solid body seen through accidental openings in the luminous substance which encompasses that immense orb. Hence the variability of the spots, which in some cases are seen to contract, dilate and disappear at short intervals in a manner only compatible with the atmospheric or gaseous state of matter. the spots, which in some cases are seen to contract, dilate and disappear at short intervals in a manner only compatible with the atmospheric or gaseous state of matter. The ingenious satronomer Nasmyth, in 1860, made an interesting addition to our knowledge of the surface of the sun. He discovered that the luminous envelope is composed of masses of bright matter in the shape of willow leaves. They become particularly distinct in this form, in the narrow straits of luminous matter which are often seen crossing through the dark maculæ.

By a singular coincidence, today is the anniversary of two queens who occupy a conspicuous place in history: MARY, QUEEN OF SCOTS, who was born in 1642, and CHRISTINA, daughter of Gustavus Adolphus and Queen of Sweden, who was born in 1626. Mary was the daughter of James V. and Mary of Guise. Her father died a few days after her birth, and at the age of 6 she was sent to France to be educated. In 1558, she married the dauphin, afterward Francis II, of France, who died in December, 1560, soon after which Mary returned to Scotland, and in 1695 married Henry Stuart, Lord Darnley, from whom the house of Stuart took its name. By this marriage she became the mother of a son, afterward James V. Scotland, and in 1695 married Henry Stuart, the same year raised a revolt, which was, however, speedily suppressed. The year following she joined the Pope, the King of France and other potentates in a league to extirpate heresy, and at the same time bestowed her confidence on David Rizzio, an Italian musician, whom she appropriet of the same time bestowed her confidence on David Rizzio, an Italian musician, whom she appropriet of the same time bestowed her confidence on David Rizzio, an Italian musician, whom she appropriet of the same time bestowed her confidence on David Rizzio, an Italian musician, whom she appropriet of the same time bestowed her confidence on David Rizzio, an Italian musician, whom she appropriet dere secretary. She had bestowed her confidence on David Rizzio, an Italian musician, whom she bestowed her conneence on David Rizzio, an Italian musician, whom she appointed her secretary. She had already become wearied with the arrogance, ignorance and dissoluteness of Lord Darniey. The latter, becoming jealous of Rizzio, caused him to be killed in the Queen's presence in March, 1566. Darniey himself was killed on the 9th of February, 1567, at Kirka-Field. Queen Mary and the Earl of Bothwell were suspected of having caused this crime. This suspicion was greatly increased by her marriage to Bothwell in May, 1567. This murder excited the hostility of Catholic and Protestant alike, and Bothwell was forced to fly from the Kingdom, while Mary was imprisoned. When released she went to England, where she was arrested by Queen Elizabeth, and after a long imprisonment was beheaded at STAPLE AND FANCY GROCERIES, 27 E. COLORADO ST. The celebrated essayist, THOMAS DE QUINCEY, author of the "Confessions of an Opium Eater," was born at Man-G. C. HALSEY, STAPLE AND FANCY chester, Eng., August 15, 1785, and died December 8, 1859. He contracted died December 8, 1859. He contracted the habit of opium eating at the University of Oxford, where he became distinguished for his vast information and rare conversational powers. In his "Confessions of an Opium Eater" he professes to portray the wretchedness and the ecstasies of those extraordinary conditions of mind and body with which from his constant use of the drug he became familiar. He began the day by taking an ounce of opium, which prostrated animal life for several hours. It was no infrequent sight to find him in his room lying upon the rug in front of the fire. THE BLESSINGS THAT FOLLOW HAPPINESS.

Happy by a Visit to Our Wonderful Toy Department.

PROPLE'S STORE.

LCS ANGELES, Dec. 8, 1882.

It is quite a blessing to be happy and to have the knack of making others happy. It is, indeed, a sight to watch the faces of the little folks as they enter our toy department. Happiness beaming on their countenances; joyous, merry, innocent happiness at the panorama of all the Sania Claus thing; spread out to view.

rama of all the Santa Claus thing's spread out to view.

We have added another LO feet of room for our wagons and velocipede wares, and this only represents the Simples. Our stock we carry on the upper floor, the variety and extent of which surpasses any imagination.

Nevertheless our trade in this line is fully up to our expectations. We have the goods bright, now and sparkling, and our patrons reward us for our enterprise, for what other firm has the nerve, in the face of the existing depre-sing times, to load up such a gigantic stock of holiday goods? As for prices, they are always right, for we never allow any one to undersell us. We either have the bottom price or we don't handle the wares. This is the reason why our house is so popular.

You never take chances on prices, and if perhaps some trade catcher drops the price below ours, we are always there to land it still lower.

still lower.

Our book department is a marvel to book-buyers. All prices out far below that of the publishers' rates, and consequently our stock is fast being purchased by comoisseurs of art and science. A look through it will repay

Did you ever notice how many short men we have in Los Angeles? I never thought of it until the other day when I was upon the street I passed three or four in quick succession, and the thought occurred to me to notice if there were anything exceptional about it, and, will you believe me, in going two blocks I passed a dozen men going two blocks I passed a dozen men going two blocks I passed a dozen men shorter than the average, wiry, active fellows, looking as if they had always-been too full of energy and action to admit of growth. I suppose that one reason of this peculiarity is that the population of Los Angeles is cosmo-colitan, gathered from every point, of population of Los Angeles is cosmo-politan—gathered from every point of the compass, and it's the young, stir-ring, energetic men who come here, and they are not always the biggest, physically, but they possess a vast, amount of "push," though they by no means do all the progressive work.

By the way, I met a well-known judge of Los Angeles not long ago—a splendid type of manhood, tall, splendid type of manhood, tall, sinewy and straight, and the very personification of good health, although he is no longer young in years, who told me that here in this marvelous climate of ours, he never sleeps more that four hours out of the 24, and that was all that his health demands. I think that he must secretly have gotten hold of some rare "elixir of life," for in brilliant literary work, and in physical vigor, I doubt if any of our young intellectual giants excel him. But as for that "elixir," I'm inclined to think that steady habits, fixed purpose and a strong will are about the best ingredients of which it can be compounded.

Two little children—a poorly-clad boy, and girl—were looking in at Sanborn & Vail''s show-window the other day. They were feasting their eyes on the beauty of the pictures displayed there, and, oblivious of passerby, were carrying on a lively converthere lying on the ground, and that pretty woman there just a painting of his face. Don't they look fine, though—as if they was havin' a real good time—just lots of fun?"

vandered away to a b Madonna-like face, on which she gazed with eyes that were full of delight.

"What one does you think is the prettiest?" inquired Jimmy, at length.

"O, I like that lady over there in the gold frame—don't you see? She looks so sweet I think an angel must have kissed her."

Dear little child, I thought, there's a a poet's soul hidden away under your faded calico.

On one of our principal streets, hand in hand, stood the other day at a show window, a rural youth and maiden. They were evidently on their bridal "tower," and had come to see the "Meliss," said he, "how do you think you would like to live in town?" "I shouldn't like it, John. I never could get used ter so many folks. It jest seems as if they was all looking at

"Wish you was at home, don't yer, with the cows and horses and chickens, with the posies all round yer, don't yer, now Meliss?" and he held her hand a little more tightly, and bending forward looked into her homesick eyes with an honest, tender glance that seemed to go right to her heart.

"Oh, John, I can't be really homesick anywhere with you, but I'll be glad ter go home jest as soon as you are ready."

"Wish you was at home, don't yer, the seems and the can a string, a jewsharp, a small whistle and a stick of chewing um, he drew forth triumphantly a nickel, which he dropped into the basket; and then, turning to his mother with a whisper of exultation, he said: "It's jolly I had that, ain't it? Just saved you from being white-washed, didn't I, mother.

now, Meliss?"

"Yes, dear," she said, as she lifted up a pair of tender black eyes, which were awimming with the tears of happy gladness at the thought of going home with John to all the pleasant sights and sounds, and the quiet of the farm. How glad is the life that is filled with content!

days ago who had stubbed his toe, and who had a great, ugly stone bruise on the bottom of his foot. He was nursing his wound and just writhing with the pain which it caused him, but never a tear did he shed, though he clinched his dirty little fists and shut his teeth hard together to keep from crying.

"Cracky! I ain't sorry I hurt it now: it's so splendid to know how good it feels when it stops aching."

Ah, my young philosopher, you will make the best of life's lils.

during the past storm, cloud effects during the past storm, such as it would be difficult for the brush of the mest skillful painter to instate. The mountains have been covered at times with billowy masses which were nied upon the Sierras—vast zenith-raching Alps, with crests of snow, whitness; with shadow-like canons where Ursa Major might wander, or might Orion lift his spear amid their soltunes. And out through the blus has seen to Titanic cloud-when one Sunday, not I was amused when one Sunday, not long since, the buskets were passed at one of our churches for the usual Sabshath contributions. A lady sat beside me with her little son, a wide-awake young American of about 8 years. The lady is noted for her benevolence, and every Sabbath the church where she worships is the richer by four or five dollars for the sum which she contributes. But this same Sabbath she had been hurried in her preparations for church, and as she hastened away to be in time for the opening service she had forgotten to take her purse with her.

"Mamma has forgotten her purse," she said, as the boy reached out his hand in order that he might deposit her donation in the basket as it was passed.

Written for The Times. It Rains. It rains: and all the barrer ground Moves upward with the swelling seed, And promises a harvest rich Of blooming flowers, and flowering weed.

It rains! and fearless mountain streams Desert the paths they have outgrown, And, by the wayside pepper trees, Dig out a channel of their own. It rains! the mountain sides are green, The orange buds begin to swell, The calls, with its tongue of gold, Sways like a great inverted bell.

It rains: a generous southern rain, A steady downpour for a while, And then are we rejoiced to find. That Winter greets us with a smile. F. ELLA SHELLHAMER.

OTTAWA (Canada), Nov. 28 .- [Spe cial Correspondence of THE TIMES.] An officer of the Canadian customs who has just returned from the Pacific Coast, stated today that he believed the United States Government was losing at the rate of nearly $1,000,000 a year in revenue which should be colected from the prepared opium which is being manufactured in British Co-lumbia and smuggled across into the United States. He says he saw enough with his own eyes to convince him of the gigantic frauds which are being perpetrated on the United States Government by the organized gang who have brought the business dawn to a system. "There is no guess work about it," he continued, "as there is ample proof of the fraud that is being carried on, across the border, in the Dominion trade returns. A little figuring shows up the whole affair. Take," he said, "the trade returns for 1888, the last available—although those for 1889 will show a large increase—and it is found that, outside of the crude opium smuggled into Canada, 101,989 pounds were imported and paid duty, the bulk of which was distributed among the 13 factories in operation in Victoria, B. C.—each of which pays an annual municipal license fee of $500—to be refined, the product of which would be 50,388 pounds, of which 5000 pounds of the refined material would supply all demands for home consumption. A foreign market has to be found for the Government by the organized gang mands for home consumption. A for-eign market has to be found for the balance, 45,000 pounds, but the trade returns do not show that any of it was palance, 45,000 pounds, but the trade returns do not show that any of it was exported.

The handlest and most accessible market is the United States, into which there is every proof it is being smuggled. That 90 per cent. of the opium refined in British Columbia last year was smuggled across the border last year is shown by the fact that United States trade returns for the year show that the total quantity of prepared opium imported from Canada during 1888 was only 77 pounds, valued at $764. According to these figures, taking the United States duty on prepared opium, $10 per pound, the revenue was defrauded out of $450,000. But this is based upon a calculation that all the crude opium imported into British Columbia was reported at the customs, which was not the case, as it is believed fully as much more was smuggled in by the refiners, which would swell the quantity refined up to 100,000 pounds, and the quantity muggled into the Enited States up to 90,000 pounds.

have run up to nearly $1.,000,000. That the business has been found profitable is shown by the fact that the quantity of crude oplum imported into British Columbia increased from 5075 pounds in 1880 to 101,989 pounds in 1888, while the figures for 1889 will show a proportionate increase. This is a nice nut for United States customs officials to crack," he added, "and they will find some difficulty in putting down this gigantic fraud on the revenue, of which, unfortunately, British Columbia has been made the base of operations."

The Canadian Minister of Customs, when spoken to on the subject, said that it was impossible for him to do anything so long as the refiners were not caught smuggling the crude opium into Canada. He was, however, considering the advisability of imposing an excise duty on the refined article, as impossed on liquors and ci-verge of starvation, subsisting on the flesh of dogs. At a number of the flesh of dogs. At a number of the flesh of food, the fleshermen saved the refuse from their fish, which they salted, and which will have to be eaten to keep them alive. The flesheries, upon which they entirely depend, were a failure, and they were left without means to buy food.

It is feared that before winter is out the past history of the sufferings of these people will repeat itself, and that they will again be driven to cannibalism. The Dominion Government re-they will again be driven to cannibal-ism. The Dominion Government re-fused to establish a precedent by send-ing them provisions in response to their appeal for help. The Govern-ment of Quebec has purchased and forwarded provisions and clothing to the extent of $3000 for their relief, which will, however, fall a long way short of carrying them through the wintes.

A prominent officer of the Marine and Fisheries Department here stated to-states that it is not the intention of states that it is not the intention of the Government to modify the act restricting Chinese immigration this session of Parliament, as has been stated, unless the people of British Columbia demand it. He holds to the opinion that for a long time to come that province will be largely dependent upon Chinese labor for the development of her resources. At present, he says, British Columbia is losing a large proportion of her Chinese population who are pouring over into the United States into Washington Territory, where they easily smurton Territory, where they easily smug-gle themselves in.

THE ALASKA BOUNDARY. Surveyors of the Dominion Govern-Surveyors of the Dominion Government, who are surveying in the extreme northwest of British Columbia, report that unless the boundary between Alaska and that province are soon definitely settled serious international complications may follow. A number of miners have been discovered at work on claims they supposed to be in Alaska, which were, in reality, in British Columbia. The question of jurisdiction between Canada and the United States is bound to arise sooner or later, and unless the boundaries are at once defined the matter will be hard of adjustment.

Territory, writing to a triend liers, in reply to a caution against the dangers of "booming," gives some information regarding the situation in the Northwest which may be worth repeating. There seems to be such a hopeless lack of nerve on the part of some people in this community just now that the courage of the few citizens of Washington—whom we can outnumber in two of our southern counties—appears positively startling. The letter says:

It is fitted up with a dining-room containing a large cooking-range, and it looks as if they could get along pretty comfortably, though their apartments will be apt to seem rather cramped before the year is over. The other two cars have aisless down the centers, and on each side arranged the exhibits in wery tasteful fushion. Large plate-glass windows expose them to view outside.

One of the cars is devoted almost entirely to California wines, which are having such a boom since the award at Paris. Prices are going up steadily here in San Francisco. Ten of the great firms are represented in this car, all being from this city, unless the Napa Valley Wine Company is considered a country firm. The others are S. Lackman & Co., B. Dreyfus & Co., Kohler & Van Bergen, J. Gundlach & Co., C. Carpy & Co., Kohler & Frohling, Arpad Haraszthy & Co., C. Schilling & Co. and Lachman & Jacobl.

There is no representative from Southern California, though one of the managers said that if Shorb of Los Angeles will get an exhibit ready they will yet give him a stand. If he does so he should try to make it original in design, as all 10 of the exhibits, while very tasteful, indeed, look exactly like each other in every respect. They consist of stands of bottles of wine of every color and name imaginable, save only champagnes, which do not seem to flourish in the absence of Dr. G.

It came from Sacramento, and suggests new ideas of the uses to which redwood may be put in the future. Here also are fine samples of wool from the Golden Gate Manufacturing Company, and a large United States flag of blanket thickness, from the Mission Woolen Mills.

The display of fruits and other products must be seen to be appreciated. To try to describe them all would fill up two columns of The Times. There are four pears from Modesto weighing 20 pounds. Three onlons from San Luis Obispo weigh 21

LAY SERMONS.

The world is full of themes from thich we may draw instruction. We may find sermons alike "in trees and running brooks;" in dowers and starry worlds; in the mighty and resistless ocean, and in the mountains whose lofty heads are familiar with the skies. From these and numberless other sources in Nature may we gather inspiration.

But none of these themes will we contemplate today, but we will turn over the pages of sacred history and study there some of the characters set forth. We will take for our theme Christian Manhood, and glance at the influence which it has exerted upon the race.

First, let us go down into Egypt, the ancient land of wealth and learning; the cradle of the arts and sciences; the land from whose priestly teachings and religious mysticism Greefan phicosophy formulated some of its wisest teachings, and from which Plato perhaps borrowed his idea of the soul's immortality.

Surrounded by the pagan superstition of the masses, among whom almost every animal had its worshipers, while the sun and stars and all the passions which control men were represented by some deity, we find a young man named Joseph, the great-grandson of Abraham—the "Father of the Faithful"—exalted, after some of the most trying vicissitudes and painful experiences, to kingly power and dignity, the favorite

Azusa, Dec. 6 .- [Correspondence of THE TIMES] A few of our old-timers from whose minds the memory of boom tactics has not yet been suffi-ciently eradicated have deprecated the attitude of my letter of last week. It is not given to some people to see what is good for them until it has been more forcibly than politely demonstrated to their silurian perceptions. What complished as the instrument under Providence, for the preservation of the Hebrew people. He nourished and fed them while they were yet small, and planted them in a fertile land, and here they increased and multiplied, while Joseph walked before them in his uprightness, loyal at all times to the God of Israel. Take his name from the early history of the Hebrew people in Egypt and how would it darken. The name of Joseph is an honored name, not alone for his rank and power, but as the noblest exemplar of Christian manhood of the age in which he lived.

And now we will turn backward a few pages in sacred history to the time when the world was young, and many peoples dwelt in tents, leading a wandering, pastoral life, simple in their habits, and drifting here and there according to the necessities of Now to come to the point in regard Now to come to the point in the province previous pervious pervious pervious pervious pervicuents and spurt, and in a given space—to make show, were it t

The Clouds and the F
Just look and see the daisies
Lift up their shining faces,
Unto the skies so blue,
As if they wondered who
Had set a-sailing there
The fleecy clouds so fair—
So very soft and white,
And looking just as light
As a downy feather—
Sailing all together;
As if each one did hold
A fairy sailor bold,
Who might be on his way
To catch at close of day— The Clouds and the Fairles To catch at close of day—
When the moon should rise
So brightly in the skies—
Just a word or two
With the old man who Lives within the moon. With the old man who Lives within the moon.
Aha! a merry tune
Would they sing together.
In this pleasant weather.
Sing and float would they
Through the skies away—
Fleecy clouds so white.
In the full moonlight,
Each one holding, maybe,
Fairy knight and lady.
There I on the mountain summit,
One has lost her bonnet—

With its strings a flying.

Ploat, float little cloud boats,
And daises swing,
While the bluebells ring,
And soft their music floats,
Filling the meadows fair
And all the rain-washed air.
Ahl when the night drops down,
Over the fields and town,
Over the fields and town,
Then, shining bright and clear,
Will the stars draw near,
And they will softly peep—
While all the daisies sleep—
At the white clouds afloat,
And if each is a boat,
With a fairy in it,
They'll know it in a minute,
And over field and hill,
The brightest star-beams will Fall in a sliver stream,
Where all the daisies dream,
And all the wood and hill,
The fairy folk will fill.
They'll come from out the sky,
From each cloud floating by,
They'll steal from out the daisies,
With laughing happy faces;
From dandelion and bluebell,
You'll hear their laughter swell, From dandellon and bluebell,
You'll hear their laughter swell,
And they'll dance upon the green,
Behind a cobweb screen.
With fiddle and with bow,
There will the cricket go;
And there the butterfly
Will make a canopy, Will make a canopy,
Of its soft wings, 1 ween,

sneing on the hills, uncing by the rills; uncing in the meadows, ad in the forest snadows hile we are asleed— sound we cannot peep Bowing as they pass.
O'er the bonding grass.
Swing, O', daisse, everywhere,
And ring ye bluebells fair,
And to your music sweet.
Shall the fairies' foet
All keep time together,
Through this moonit weather.

She has built up a business that has given her an independent position in the world. She is not a mere butterfly of fashion—she belongs to the bread-and-butter brigade of the work-a-day world. She is just as good as she ever was. She stood ready to make the charity ballrooms as attractive as possible to its wealthy patrons; and as the waltzers whirled through the four rooms decorated most suggestively as spring, summer, autumn and winter, they were reminded that during all seasons the poor had need of the aid and protection of the rich. Manifold are the deeds of benevolence; but unto mercy she has added money-making—and that, my young friends, is the moral of this little true tale. Girls, nowadays, thanks to the heavenly powers that have opened the eyes of humanity, can, if they will, conquer success in some department of labor, and in some way, at some time, runthe standard of womanbod, and delight the hearts of their early instructors, as my young herolae has rejoiced the soul of her old teacher.

And here is another story from a kind friend which cannot fail to please you, for it is a true story, and he sends it to you because he loves children. I know something about the little animal of which he tells you, and it is very cunning, indeed. But here is his story: and means of pleasing her patrons, and Worth Investigation.

We are making suits to order of the fine Huddersheid Worsteds for $25 which are worth $40. As the sale of these fine worsteds during the past three weeks has proved such an immense success in Fan Francisc. we concluded to give the benefit to the public of Los Angeles. We have purchased $40,000 worth of these Huddersheid worsteds and have added a large line of Kerseys and Meltons for overcosts, made to order, with fine sile linning, for $25 to $50, which would cost eisewhere at least from $40 to $60. We have received from the milit over $40 pieces of fine Trousering, which we bought at an immense reduction, and we are now prepared to give our customers and the public the benefit. These are fine $ALL$ WOOL goods at prices never before known in Los Angeles. Please oall and examine the goods and be convinced of the bargains now offered for the holidays.

St. Hilda's Hall entertainment lest Thursday evening was one of the pleasantest of the season. The Glen-dale Railway Company had a "special" for the benefit of invited guests from the city, who numbered 100 or more. It being a beautiful moonlight evening the ride proved a pleasing feature.

The following programme was rendered in a most creditable manner: Plano solo, "Rondo Capricciosa" (Men-elssohn)—Miss Edna Pierce.
Song, "When the Quiet Moon Is Beam-ng" (J. Soböndorf)—Miss Rendall, French recitation (V. Hugo)—Miss M.

Anderson.

Song, selected (with violin abligate by Mr. Brenner)—Miss E. Pierce.
Recitation (selected)—Miss C. B. Pierce.
Plano solo, "Rhapsodie Hongroise, No, 2" (Liszt)—Miss M. L. Cobb.
Song, "At the Ferry"—Miss N. Boynton.
Recitation, "The Charlot Race" (Ben Hur)—Prof. H. Ludlam.
Accompanist, Mrs. Beach.
The artists who took park are too.

The artists who took part are too well and favorably known to require any mention, but the several efforts of the students deserve special recogni-

Miss Edna Pierce, a charming young Miss Edna Pierce, a charming young lady, daughter of Judge Pierce of San Diego, displayed her talents musically to the very best advantage. Her piano solo was rendered in a truly artistic manner, and her song, with violin obligate, she sang charmingly.

Both the French recitation by Miss M. Anderson and that selected by Miss C. B. Pierce were of high order, and the audience showed its appreciation of the same.

Miss Julia Rendall sang "When the Quiet Moon Is Beaming" in an exquis-ite manner.

te manner.

Among the musical people and others from the city were: Mrs. and Miss Kimball, Miss Boynton, Miss Cobb, Mrs. Beach, Mrs. and Miss Baker, Miss Lawrence, Miss Jevne, Mr. and Mrs. S. Rendall, Prof. Ludlam, Mrs. J. H. Brenner, Mr. and Mrs. Ayers, Mr. and Mrs. Byram, Miss Byram, Miss Williams, Mr. White, Mr. Starr of San Pedro, W. S. Yetter of Escondido, and many others.

ILLINOIS ENTERTAINMENT. The regular weekly social of the Friday evening was attended by a very large audience, and the pro-gramme proved to be the best of the season, thus far. Before the general season, thus far. Before the general social, in which residents and strangers participated with equal freedom, there was some excellent music on the piano, violin, guitar and harmonica by Misses Poppelwell and Fleming and Messrs. L. E. and George Stanton and George Grosser. Mrs. Carey, the well-known elocutionist, recited "The Burning Ship" in a fine dramatic manner, and in response to an energy gave elecutionist, recited "The Burning Ship" in a fine dramatic manner, and in response to an encore gave "The Irish Letter," an excruciatingly funny piece, which elicited roars of laughter and applause. G. A. Hough made a decided hit in a series of character sketches in disguises. His impersonations were superb, stamping him as an artist of superior genius and earning for him universal praise.

Following the social the sparkling operatta of The Rose of Auvergue was produced in a style of art which surprised the audience and elicited the admiration of all. The cast comprised J. R. Paveilla, manager, J. Dupue and Miss F. B. Gilbert. The music and the acting were excellent. Miss Gilbert demonstrated that she has a very sweet, clear, flexible voice, well adapted to operatic music. Her acting is also easy and graceful. Messrs. Paveilla and Dupue were quite at home in their respective parts, the former being a professional and the latter an amateur. As a whole the operatta was a success, and the entire entertainment left the large audience in a happy mood.

It was announced that next Friday

It was announced that next Friday evening there would be dramatic selections by Prof. Henry of San Francisco, and a comedietta by a local company, besides the usual music and other expresses.

fested it. These fussy fellows insisted on dissecting our luggage and taking ashore piecemeal at the rate of two centimes apiece. We were quite in despair as to how to make a clearing through the babbling growd that surrounded us on every side, when a gentleman laid hold of Dr. Talmage's arm, and inquired if he had the "honneur of addressing Mons. le Docteur Talmache?" Having received an answer, he shouted: "Pardon, I call my vife." In less time than it takes to pen these words he returned with a bright, cheerful-looking lady, who at once shook both of Dr. Talmage's hands and then bestowed the same salutation on each of the balance of the party. In the mean time her husband, quickly apprehending the difficulty we were in, owing to our ignorance of French, straightened out matters in, a twinkling, insisting in paying out of his own pocket such trifling fees as materially assist one's way in a country where prospective gratuities constitute no mean item in the computation of salaries. Then, taking as much of the hand-baggage as he could manage to carry he led the way to the waiting-room, where he begged permission to supply the ladies with luscious pears and grapes there on sale, and, without waiting for a reply, bought sufficient for the party. The acceptance of his friendly offering made him feel proud as a king. Thus encouraged he again took the lead, carrying baggage in both hands and under both arms to the train, where, taking the conductor to a corner he managed to secure for us the advantages of a private compartment from Calsis to Paris. Our Frenchman was an entire stranger to the party, and thus far all we had managed to acceptant with regard to him corner he managed to secure for us the advantages of a private compartment from Calais to Paris. Our Frenchman was an entire stranger to the party, and thus far all we had managed to ascertain with regard to him was that he was "so glad of the honneur to meet M. le Docteur Talmache." Dr. Talmage was about to say that he was very thankful, etc., when the Frenchman promptly interterrupted him by saying: "Oh, veride a little vay," and suiting the action to the word, he and his wife, after politely boving us all into the compartment, followed and closed the door behind them. In another moment the train began to move and we were off.

Our strange friend, who spoke English imperfectly, addressed Dr. Talmage exclusively, at the rate of a volume a minute, and never stopped till the train arrived at ancient Calais, which is 10 minutes' distant from the landing place, known as new Calais. His wife, on the other hand, addressed the whole party. Her English was awfully broken, and in her great anxiety to say all that was in her minute to say, she just jammed her words together as if they were under hydraulic pressure. Every half minute her memory or tongue failed her in her attempts to utter the suitable word in English, but she would promptly extricate herself by using the French equivalent, when she would sweetly smile, winking at the same time, as much as to say, "Do you catch po?"

We gathered that the pair had been greatly profited by reading the Brookiyn sermons in the London Christian Herald. Not understanding English, they had managed to carry themselves through them with the aid of a dictionary. Although engaged as an engineer in a cracker bakery, the good man found considerable opportunity to do missionary work among his fellow-townsen, and he found Dr. Talmage's sermons exceedingly helpful to him in his Christian activity. He belonged to the Wesleyan denomination, in which he was an exhorter. Such knowledge of English as he and his vife passed they had gained aveclusively through their efforts to the wesley and his wife possessed they had gained ex-clusively through their shorts. From the Tabernacle sermons. From the columns of the paper named he and his partner had learned Dr. Talmage's plans of travel, and filled with a burn-ing desire to see the man whose ser-mons had done them so much good, they had decided to go to the dock at Calais and there await his arrival. To make sure of recognizing him they had,

Calais and there await his arrival. To make sure of recognizing him they had, before they left home, studied the features of a portrait that adorns the walls of their home.

As we arrived in Paris the day after the World's Exposition closed, we were, unfortunately, not able to see it in its glory. Getting up early in the morning, however, we took a coach and drove over to the grounds in order to see the famous Eiffel tower. When questioned as to his impressions of the tower, Dr. Talmage said:

"It surpasses my expectation.

tower, Dr. Talmage said:

"It surpasses my expectation. I never before saw the exquisite and majestic so effectively combined. The way to look at it is to let your eye start at the base and very slowly ascend, and by the time your sight has traveled to the top you will find yourself out of breath with emotion. A man who breath with emotion. A man who could build that tower could build a world if he had the materials and machinery requisite. Nothing that will ever be built on either continent can take anything from the originality and splendor of the intellect that planned that marvel before, yet its two first bars of iron were interlaced. But the idea I have seen in some newspapers that we cannot equal that structure for our American Exposition of 1892 is an absurdity as high as Eiffel Tower. Our American architects and engineers are as talented, our building material as strong, our foundations as solid, our skies as lofty. Surely the lines of beauty are not all exhausted. I warrant you there are already a dozen American artists who have a tower more graceful than this, either in their brain or actually put in diagram. Give our American genius a chance for succustructure. The history of the Eiffel Tower proves not only that the thing can be done, but that it will be financially remunerative. As sure as we live we shall see in America, in 1892, a tower higher, stronger, more delicately graceful and with larger financial income. If the Eiffel Tower is 1000 feet high, we can have a tower 1500 feet high, we can have an tower 1500 feet high; if that weighs 150,000,000 pounds, we can have one weighing 200,000,000 pounds; if 10,000 persons can stand in it at one time, we can have 15,000 in ours. As America has the greatest cataract coming down, she might as well have the greatest tower going up."
